ONE of our politician friends is indignant. He reported he was down the street the other day with nothing much on his mind, when he saw a farmer he knew.

Walking up the politician shook hands with him. "And what are you running for?" the farmer asked. "Not a darn thing," snapped the indignant one. And, to me later, he added, "It's got so a fellow can't even shake hands any more without exciting suspicion." Aint it so . . . aint it so . . .

Cotton Subsidy Is Necessary to Avoid
Collapse in Price

—Wallace

Control Required by Carry-Over as Great as That of 1932

HAD BEEN REDUCED
But Asiatic War Has Curtailed Jap Purchases, Says Secretary

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Belief that some sort of subsidy or adjustment payment to cotton growers will be necessary for several years was expressed by Secretary Wallace Wednesday. He told reporters that the administration has adopted a "middle course" in establishing acreage limits or "goals" for cotton next year under the soil conservation benefit program.

The 1932 program sets up a cotton "goal" of 29,000,000 to 31,000,000 acres compared with about 34,000,000 this year and an average of 36,858,000 in the 10 years of 1928-37.

"One of the Southern senators thinks the cotton acreage ought to be held down next year to about 25,000,000," Wallace said. "Another group of Southern leaders thinks it should be about 40,000,000."

He said the limits established by the administration were intended to prevent a collapse of prices as a result of an large carry-over stocks as in 1932, and at the same time give cotton growers a fair income. Total income from the large crop of more than 16,000,000 bales this year should about equal income last year, he said, as a result of the government nine-cent loan and the subsidy payment of up to three cents a pound on part of the crop.

Says Carry-Over Reduced
Wallace said the carry-over of American cotton had "been whittled down" from about 14,000,000 bales in August, 1933, to about 6,000,000 in August, estimating domestic consumption and exports at about 13,000,000 bales for the present season, which started August 1. Wallace added that the carry-over into next season would increase to about 9,000,000 bales.

He said that if average yields prevailing during recent years could continue next year, the 36,000,000 acres would produce between 11 and 12,000,000 bales. With consumption and exports holding up, he said the 1933 program would reduce the carry-over again to about 7,000,000 bales on August 1, 1934.

Cites War in China
Wallace declared that the recent outbreak in the Orient had demonstrated the difficulty of anticipating exports. Japan has taken only 33,000 bales of American cotton between August 1 and September 15 compared with 110,000 during the same period last year.

The secretary said an attempt to hold down production too much in this country in an effort to bolster domestic prices might sacrifice foreign markets completely. The cotton program in general and foreign markets in particular will be discussed by Wallace at a conference for Southern farm leaders in Memphis, October 1.

A Thought

As the print of the seal on the wax is the express image of the seal itself, so Christ is the express image—the perfect representation of God.—Ambrose

From the loose talk that is uttered about "social dividends," and share the wealth, the conclusion might be drawn that all the gains of science, invention, and low-cost production are enjoyed by a few and not by the many.

The stupidity of this should be readily clear to any reasonable person who will face the facts. Let us list the great gains of the last century that are enjoyed by all, including the humblest worker or loafer:

Newspapers, radio, books in public libraries, movies, magazines, telephone, electric light, public parks, museums. Following closely are automobiles, indoor toilets, bathtubs, refrigeration, washing machines, vacuum cleaners. Greater than any of these, perhaps, is better health and comfort, due to public sanitation.

These additions to the joy of existence didn't drop from the sky. They are the product of effort and scheming and planning, under private initiative. In a thousand different ways men today are working feverishly to supply the world with other devices that will make life richer for millions of people.

Social dividends and pensions when paid in printing press money are meaningless. Social dividends, when paid in free education for children and adults, are of everlasting benefit.

TEXARKANA—David L. Ford, commissioner of revenues in Arkansas, Wednesday revoked a liquor store permit issued A. T. Bratton of Texarkana, whose business is located at 1107 East Ninth street.

It was the first license issued liquor store dealers in Texarkana, Ark., to be cancelled. Ford said his permit, No. 226, must be surrendered to A. M. Shirley, Sr., inspector of Miller county.

MIND Your MANNERS

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. Would it be correct for a married woman to sign her name "Mrs. John Doe" when writing for hotel reservations?
2. In a hotel should one telephone for "Room Service" when asking for food to be sent to his room?
3. How should a hotel guest call when wanting information about trains or luggage?
4. When checking out of a hotel is it wise to call the cashier a half hour ahead of time and ask to have one's bill made out?
5. Should a woman staying in a large hotel wear her hat in the dining room in the daytime?

What would you do if—
(a) You are checking out of a hotel?
(b) Pay your bill at cashier's desk and send a bellboy back to your room for luggage?
(c) Call a bellboy to get your luggage and go down with him to check out?
(d) Send your luggage down first, then pay your bill and check out?

Speaking at Night

Members of the Arkansas Utilities Commission of Little Rock are expected to head the speaking program at Spring Hill schoolhouse next Wednesday night, September 29, when the City of Hope and the people of Hempstead county dedicate the new rural electrification project of the municipal water & light plant.

Mayor Albert Graves, in charge of arrangements, announced Thursday that the invitation had gone forward to the utilities commission, which is expected to attend in a body.

Also on the program will be a General Electric speaker, a Little Rock lecturer on electric home appliances, and John Owens of Hope, head linesman of the municipal plant.

The Hope Boys Band will precede the speakers to Spring Hill, arriving there about 6 o'clock Wednesday night, and playing until about 7 o'clock, when the program will begin.

The City of Hope also is planning to tender a barbecue at the school grounds, depending on arrangements with the Spring Hill citizens.

Spring Hill will announce its own features on the night program, including opening prayer by a rural minister, musical numbers and a historical sketch of the Spring Hill community by one of its older residents.

Beginning at noon, and continuing through the afternoon until the start of the speaking program at night, the schoolhouse will be occupied by booths containing exhibits of various electrical appliances and merchandise.

Booths will be installed by Hope merchants and state distributors who are co-operating with Little Rock.

County Quota Is 750 Members—Up 150 From Quota a Year Ago

Plans for the annual Hempstead County Red Cross Roll Membership drive were made Wednesday night at a meeting of chapter officials held at Hotel Barlow.

The membership quota for the county was set at 750, which is 150 above the quota last year.

The Rev. Bert Webb, pastor of Hope Gospel Tabernacle, was selected as chairman of the drive in Hope. A. H. Wade of Elvins and Reginald Bearden of Hope were selected as chairmen of the rural district, Wade taking the north half and Bearden the south half of the county, with the Missouri Pacific railroad as his division line.

SHREVEPORT, La.—With a victory in their season's opener and a week's grind of hard scrimmage sessions behind them, the Byrd Yellow Jackets enroute for Hope, Ark., early Friday morning where they clash with the Hope Bobcats Friday night.

The Bobcats are a highly-touted gridiron eleven, possessing a veteran array of talent in their opening lineup. Early-season predictions by Arkansas sport writers conceded the Bobcats a place in the state finals.

Comparative scores give the advantage to neither squad, since the Arkansans defeated Horatio's Lions by the score of 48-0 while the Byrdmen turned the Lions back by the count of 49-6. True, the Lions pushed over a touch-down against the Jackets, but it must be remembered that the Byrdmen team that was scored on was stocked with fourth and fifth-stringers.

Starting Lineup
Coach Lee Dobson is expected to start the same lineup as in the Horatio contest, with Garrett and Rainer on the terminals, Dufour and Wolbrete, tackles; Dickson and Caviness, guards; Hendricks, center; Sweeney quarterback; Byrd and Feducia, halves, and Mize at the fullback post.

The manner in which the stout Jacket line frustrated each offensive drive the Lions attempted to stage, brought delight to the Byrd mentors, since their principal worry has been the forward wall.

Henri Wolbrete, 200-pound tackle and understudy last year, turned in a splendid performance in his first appearance as a regular. Wolbrete rose to stellar heights in the first period when he broke through the enemy's guard to block a punt. Charley Dufour, Wolbrete's running mate at the other tackle birth, pounded on the oval for a score.

In the backfield, the Jackets uncovered several threats, principally Lee Bird, James Sweeney, Jack Orblison and Jerry Mize.

Final Drill Thursday
Coach Foy Hammons planned to send his Hope High School football team through a light drill practice Thursday afternoon in the last session before tackling the strong Byrd High School team here Friday night at 8 o'clock.

Hammons gave his men a number of new scoring plays early this week and much time has been spent in fashioning an effective offensive to spring against the Louisianians.

Tackle Freeman Stone and End Percy Ramsey, have been "booting" the ball all over the field this week and may be called back to do some of the punting against the byrdmen. Both players have been kicking the ball consistently for 50 yards.

Hammons also has been devoting some time in ground and aerial defense. Hammons predicted a hard fight from start to finish with a close score.

Byrd Reported Heavy
Unofficial figures show that the Byrd team will have a weight advantage both in the line and backfield. It will be the second game for Byrd and the third of the season for the Bobcats.

New $6,500 Gulf-Studebaker-Willys Agency
Plans Formal Opening

Formal opening of the new $6,300 Archer Motor company service station, Third and Walnut streets, will be held Saturday.

The station is one of the newest and most modern of its kind between Little Rock and Dallas—a one-stop station where a tourist may purchase a nickel package of tape to a deluxe Studebaker automobile.

The station will handle a complete line of Gulf products, Studebaker cars and trucks, Willys automobiles, and a complete line of Goodrich products which include tires, tubes and accessories.

The station is equipped with the most modern greasing racks, three electrical pumps, three modern rest rooms, a spacious show and office room, a large neon sign in front of the building and neon signs around the canopy.

The station has a modern garage, 30 by 90 feet. The Archer Motor company will offer the public a 24-hour service.

Personnel of the company follows: E. L. Archer, general manager; Mrs. E. L. Archer, bookkeeper; Jesse Hutson, bookkeeper and front attendant; Snow Williams, grease man.

In the shop will be George Duke, foreman; Clyde Morris and Robert Stewart, mechanics; Alvin James, negro, helper and mechanic; A. L. Palmer, negro, wash boy.

LONDON, Eng.—(AP)—Diplomatic quarters expressed fear Wednesday night that Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy might send more troops for the Spanish insurgent armies to offset the diplomatic setback he suffered in the anti-piracy patrol of the Mediterranean.

Italy has indicated she will fall in line concerning the Nyon accord of time powers for halting mysterious attacks on shipping from the Mediterranean, but observers believed the Italian leader would not let matters rest at that. From Italy came circumstantial reports of moves to send more "volunteers" to insure victory for the Spanish insurgents.

British and French officials were studying plans to counter such a move, but the French anxious to open the Franco-Spanish frontier. How far the train switched through Chicago.

Yankee Movie Rescue Ruled Out in China

THERE is always a big thrill in a movie which shows the United States navy arriving in the nick of time to rescue hard-pressed American citizens in some war-torn port on the other side of the world.

You know the kind—the refugees huddled in some compound or concession, with villainous foreigners laying it on them with machine guns, bombs and the threat of a fate worse than death for the heroine.

Then, just as human flesh can stand no more, a lean gray shape appears on the horizon, trailing a plume of smoke. It draws nearer, a bit of bunting flutters brightly at the main truck—and behold! It is the United States cruiser Neversink, her decks stripped for action, healthy tars standing at the guns, bronzed officers scanning the scene through field glasses. And all is well.

THIS sort of thing puts a thrill down the spine of the most pacific of citizens. And because we are all familiar with such drama, it came as an unpleasant shock to learn that the United States navy was not going to do much defending, as far as American refugees in China are concerned. On the contrary, the State Department has warned all such refugees to stay in China at their own risk, and has intimated that the most the navy can do is take them away if they want to leave.

This reverses all of our most romantic traditions, and also leaves the luckless Americans in China with the feeling that their government has deserted them in time of peril. But before we get too indignant about it, it might pay us to examine the situation a little more closely.

It is no mere riot or sporadic uprising that menaces the lives and property of foreigners in China today. It is a first-class, full-dress war, carried on with the utmost determination by well-armed, well-trained troops. It is not in the least like the sort of thing that used to draw American cruisers to lonely Central American ports in days gone by.

In those cases, a handful of ragged insurrectionists would be fighting a handful of equally ragged federalists on some sunburnt sand hill, spraying the port with machine gun bullets while they struggled to see whether Generalissimo This or Field Marshal That would be the next president. It was a simple matter for an American warship to steam into harbor, train her guns on the contending parties, and warn all hands to stop fighting before someone got hurt.

WHAT is going on in China has not the faintest resemblance to that. If this government set out to protect American lives and property there in the old-style way, it would need the entire United States fleet and several divisions of soldiers. The result almost certain would be war with a first-class power—bloody and ruinously expensive.

It simply can't be done. And since half-way measures are so dangerous, it is hard to see how our government can do anything except just what it is doing. The plight of American citizens in China is tragic—but the tragedy would be infinitely greater if we went to war to defend them.

Growers' Grains of Hope

FOR the last three years the United States was an importer of wheat—after some three-quarters of a century in which it acted as a granary for half the world. Crop restriction plans, droughts and other unusual circumstances had reversed a tide which had been flowing since before the Civil war.

Now, however, the tide is resuming its normal course. A bulletin from the Alexander Hamilton Institute reports that this year the United States will be in a position to export some 200,000,000 bushels of wheat. The west is producing a bumper crop. Once again, American wheat will be flowing across the Atlantic to help restock the cupboard of Europe.

Perhaps this bewildered and eccentric world is going to return to normal after all.

No Evidence Found That Cancer Grows Out of Variations in Human Diet

This is No. 5 in a series of articles by Dr. Morris Fishbain in which he discusses causes of cancer and measures for its prevention and cure.

(No. 326)

Those in favor of the sale of whole wheat bread rather than of white flour claim that the refining of our foods is responsible for all deaths from cancer.

In Great Britain, where extensive studies have been made under the direction of the Imperial Cancer Research Fund, the conclusion was made that there exists no trustworthy evidence, experimental, clinical, or statistical, of a causal relationship between cancer and the absence or presence or excess of any particular constituent of the human diet.

Enough is already known to say that no distinct relationship has been established between the number of vitamins taken into the body and cancer. There are some who assert that eating food cooked in aluminum cooking utensils is responsible for the incidence in cancer. They give a fine example of the mishandling of medical statistics by those who do not have the slightest conception of medicine, chemistry or statistical information.

First, it is not at all certain that there has been an alarming increase in the incidence of cancer.

Second, investigations made by special committees of scientists in England, France, Germany and the United States have shown that cooking of even acid fruits and vegetables for long periods of time in aluminum ware does not get enough aluminum into the food after cooking to give any appreciable effect. In fact, it requires the most delicate chemical tests to indicate the presence of aluminum.

Moreover, there is hardly enough aluminum in the materials to equal the amounts that we take in every day in our ordinary foods.

Touring Industrial Slums of America.

Those who followed carefully and in detail the revelations of the LaFollette Civil Liberties Committee will find little new in Clinch Calkins' "Spy Overhead" (Harcourt Brace and Co., $2.50). The book is a summary of the grubbiest examples of industrial espionage turned up by that committee, illuminated by Miss Calkins' frequently acute comment.

The LaFollette slumming expedition into the tenebrous industrial relations was a dramatic production directed by Senator LaFollette. Miss Calkins has collected and strung together a bunch of the more odorous

Problem Arrives With Hand-me-downs

What shall we do about Betty telling all the family secrets to the neighbors? a mother asks. She received a box of clothes from her cousin who has more money than she can spend. In it were some fall coats for the children, as they are about an age with her cousin's offspring. The clothes were far more expensive than any she could buy herself, and besides they had that look of elegance far removed from the fashion of her own community.

Betty, it seems, tore next door at once, while her mama was hanging the garments away, and told the good news. Had Betty been Louise, her older sister, she would have kept mousy quiet, as Louise is at the sensitive age and would rather die almost than let on that her swanky new morsels.

Three hundred detective agencies in the country do industrial work, Miss Calkins indicates, and the amount of the "overhead" for this kind of work may be guessed from the fact that Pinkerton's alone was paid $419,000 by General Motors in 31 months.

The technique of spying, of disrupting unions by detectives planted within them, of the agent provocateur, of professional strike-breaking by "finks, nobles, hookers, sluggers, missionaries and ravers" of the tear gas business, of blacklisting, of the manipulation of public opinion, all are discussed.

The cream of the just to Miss Calkins is found in those instances where detective agencies shamelessly mulcted the industries that employed them, by padded expense accounts, shadowy activities with no reality, and exaggerated reports aimed quite successfully at scaring more spy-money out of jittery employers.

Miss Calkins has contrived with senatorial assistance, a thrilling personally-conducted tour of the industrial underworld—W. T.

A Worry Instead of a Help. Well, next door wasn't so bad, as Mrs. X was a good friend of Mrs. Z's, but there were the Smiths and the Joneses and the whole street. Besides Louise's school friends would be wanting to know. "Really," said Mrs. Z, "I wish the box hadn't come. It worries me to death to know what to tell the girls to say."

"I don't care who knows, myself, but John doesn't want people to think he can't dress his family. And besides Louise is just as touchy. What am I to do?"

"Do the children need the grand clothes their little cousins outgrew?" I inquired.

"Well, not actually. I got them nice blue coats in the spring, and for winter Betty can wear her sister's last year's brown. I have to get Louise a new coat then. These beautiful gray ones that care are too light to wear when it gets really cold."

"If the clothes have only brought you a new problem, then I would not use them. But if you feel like putting them on the children, then have them tell the truth. Be guided by your littlest girl. She knew what to do. Possibly other things will come that you won't want to discard. It will all be to do over again."

"Louise has some stuck up little friends. I am afraid they will talk. And John will have a fit if we go telling people that our relations are dressing us."

To Accept or Not to Accept. "Then I think you have answered your own problem," said I. "Why not write your very kind cousin and suggest that she send the next box to children who really need the clothes?"

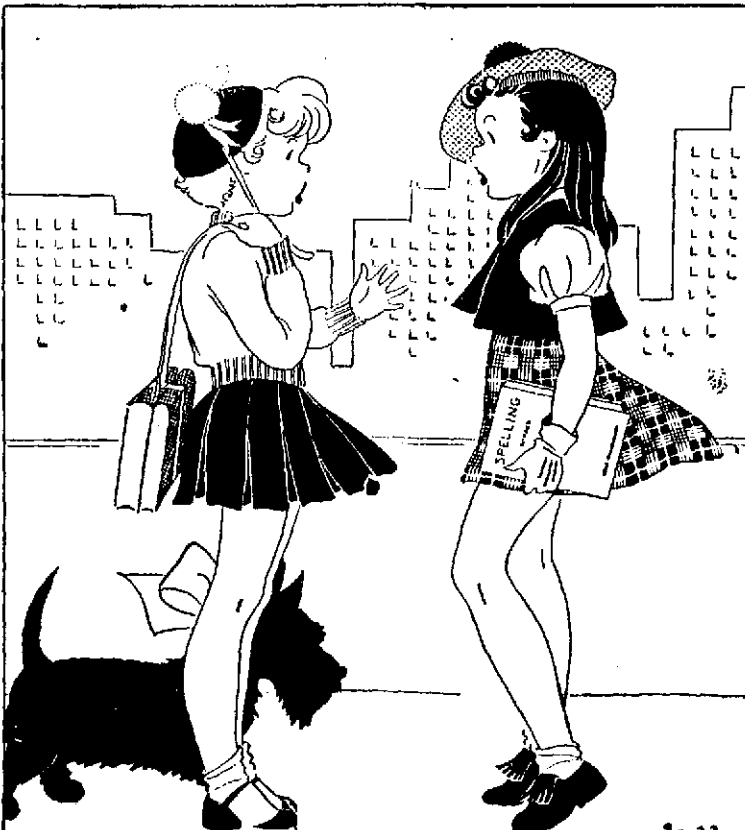

"I hate to do that. They have such wonderful things."

"I am afraid I cannot advise you to tell the children to fib about it. And incidentally, I don't think other people

HOLLYWOOD—Short takes: Robert Benchley had spent a long, willing day under the hot lights on the "Live, Love and Learn" set. He sighed, "Golly, it'll be nice to get out of this wet suit and into a dry Martini!"

You've heard of chest wigs being applied to smooth-torsoed men-of-the-films. But censorship has changed all that. Ben Blue had to shave his chest to wear bathing trunks for a scene in "Thrill of a Lifetime."

And speaking of censorship, the script of Mae West's new picture—which may be called "Every Day's a Holiday"—has been provisionally approved. But almost as long as the story itself was the letter suggesting changes and deletions.

Charles Laughton just won't come to Hollywood for "Marie Antoinette," or for anything else. So Peter Lorre and Oscar Homolka are being tested for the role of "Louis XVI."

It will be an odd Sino-Japanese alliance if Paramount persuades Sessue Hayakawa to come here and appear with Anna May Wong in "East of Shanghai." Hayakawa, a silent-day star, has been acting in French pictures in recent years.

Garbo Conquest? Those romance rumors about Leopold Stokowski and Greta Garbo can't be still. Also there's talk of another heart-attack for her—somebody in the east—She is said to have visited New York in disguise several times since her return from Europe.

Certainly her picture, "Conquest," has been delayed long enough to permit such trips. It was 10 weeks late in starting, was in active production for four months, and required an extra month for additional scenes and retakes. The cost will be about $2,000,000.

Funsters in the title departments are having fun with names such as "Love and Hisses" and "Sheik-to-Sheik." Most inexplicable title is "The Four Marys," announced by Metro. There are only three women in the story and none of them is named Mary.

Sidney Solomon is here, in the last stronghold of suckermongering, looking for a location for a restaurant. Solomon is the former manager of the Central Park Casino, where if you said pretty-please you could get a ham sandwich for $1.50.

Seen: Simone Simon with Gene Markey, Helen Hayes with Alice Roosevelt Longworth, Herbert Marshall with Lee Russell, Wendy Barrie with a black eye.

Overheard: "He'd really be a good guy at heart—if he had a heart."

Wanted: A chess-playing valet for John Barrymore. He has hired and fired five within the past six months.

The good valets couldn't play well enough, and the good players were poor valets.

June Boosts Income. Department of realism: Errol Flynn, playing "Robin Hood," is the despair of his archery teacher.

Somebody figured it would be a novel idea to have the Yacht Club Boys perform on a yacht in "Thrill of a Lifetime." They never were on a yacht before.

Most of the little girls in "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer" wear wigs. That's because the casting office couldn't find enough Hollywood dummies with long hair to be braided into pig-tails.

When Jane Withers isn't busy at the studio she likes to help out at the sidewalk pop stand run by some neighborhood pals. Sometimes she earns as much as 10 cents a day, supplementing her regular salary of $750 a week.

Don Ameche's brother Jimmy likely will get a contract at Warners. W. C. Fields is well enough to beat all callers at ping-pong. Clark Gable is conferring with architects, and in big figures. Joan Crawford determines to try a Broadway play or two when her Metro contract expires next year. And she may never return to the screen.

Pine Blister Rust Damages Forests

Valuable North Rocky Mountains Stands Are Attacked

SPOKANE, Wash.—(P)—Faster than an army of control workers can check it, deadly white pine blister rust is damaging the nation's best commercial timberlands.

At the moment it is attacking the immensely valuable north Rocky mountain stands.

Although thousands of fighters have been mobilized against it, the department of agriculture reports the blister rust is spreading through Montana, Idaho, Oregon, Washington, California, Colorado and Wyoming, where most of the nation's valuable pine timber is found.

"It is obvious that control measures are falling far behind," says Elers Koch, in charge of control work in the northern Rocky mountain section. "At best we are going to lose a tremendous amount of white pine—and we may be forced to abandon large areas entirely."

Spores of the rust, crumhorn ribbed, move from host plants—wild currants and gooseberries—to healthy trees. Wind carries millions of spores from such diseased plant to all trees within 300 feet.

The disease can be controlled by destroying every host plant in a forest. It appears to be sort of a cancer, which enters the tree through the needles. It moves into the branches and then to the trunk, where the parasite lives on sap sent up from the roots. A canker appears at the seat of infection. As the disease progresses, the canker bursts, releasing millions of spores.

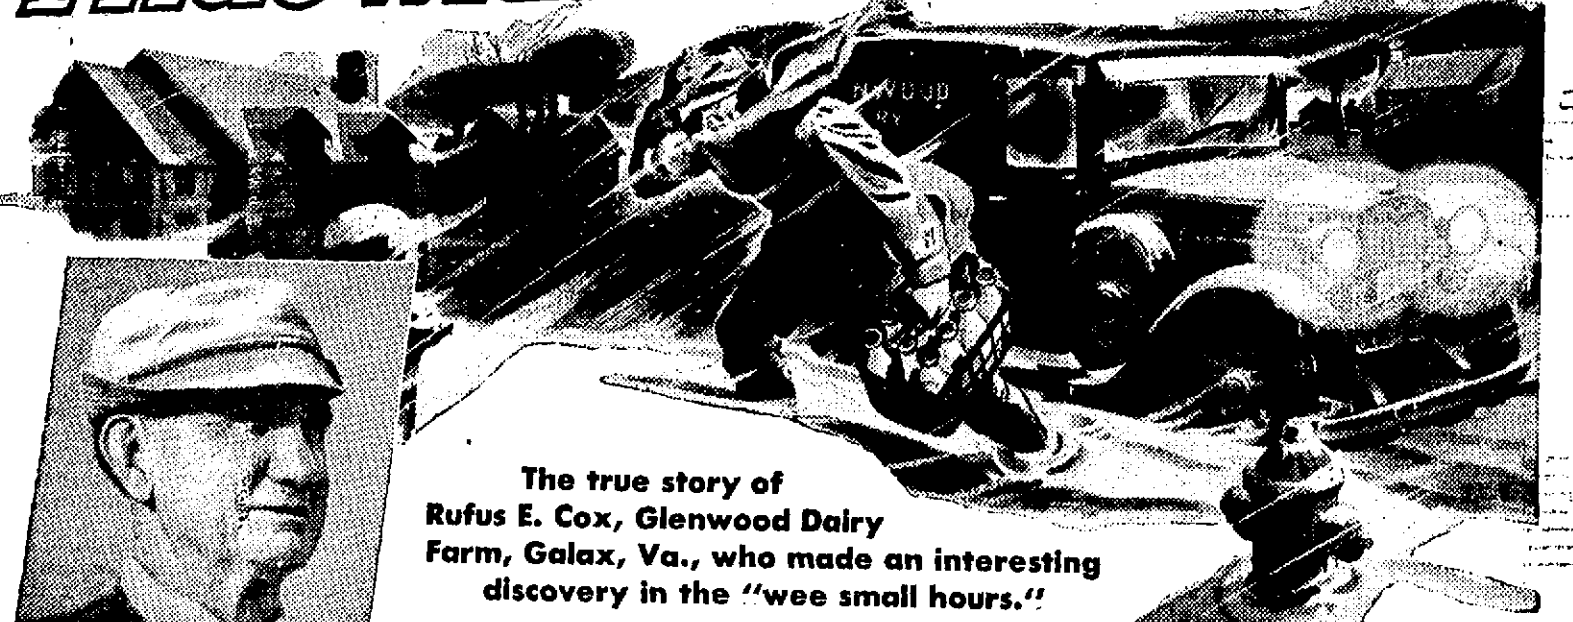

Pillar of Coal May Be Seen Once More

LINTON, Ind.—(P)—Plans are being made for the rebuilding of a monument marking the center of population of the United States, two and nine-tenths miles northwest of Linton. The original marker, built of coal, was burned for fuel last winter by a needy family.

OUT OF THE NIGHT

CAST OF CHARACTERS
PRISCILLA PIERCE—heroine, young woman attorney.
AMY KERR—Cilly's roommate and murderer's victim.
JIM KERRIGAN—Cilly's fiancé.
HARRY HUTCHINS—Amy's strange visitor.
SERGEANT DOLAN—officer assigned to solve the murder of Amy Kerr.

Yesterday Dolan checks up on Hutchins, finds he put in a call from his hotel at 12:20 on the night of the murder. That was about the time Amy was killed. Earlier Dolan finds Aunt Harriet of Interlaken has been dead for four years.

CHAPTER VIII

SERGEANT DOLAN looked at the telephone number he had jotted down, the one which Harry Hutchins called the night before at 12:20.

"Buckminster 11434. That's Brooklyn. Not your number, by any chance?"

Cilly shook her head. "The Buckminster exchange is in Flatbush," she reminded him. She had an idea whose number it was.

Dolan dialed "Information." He inquired the name of the party at Buckminster 11434 and wrote the name down in his little book. "Party named A. G. Harmon," he remarked to Cilly.

It was as she had thought. Harry had hurried home to call Gloria Harmon. She was glad that she had made it quite definite that Amy was not in love with him.

SERGEANT DOLAN stood up. He looked in toward the bedroom.

Cilly stood up too, and watched him nervously. "He's going to look around," she thought. "He'll find the postcard under my pillow. He'll surely find it."

But he didn't go into the bedroom. To Cilly, he said: "I wonder if the young lady left any personal information . . . any letters, for example. Or an address book. Might find some relatives or friends in that whom you don't know about."

Cilly went over to the bureau. "Amy kept all of her things in here," she offered. "I'll look through it . . ."

She opened the top right drawer. Amy's black pocketbook caught her eye. She handed it to the sergeant.

Dolan went through the bag, glancing at each item and laying it on the bureau. A compact and lipstick. Five dollars and some change. A bankbook. (He noticed that it showed a balance of over two hundred dollars, made up of small, fairly regular deposits. That was not unusual for a girl with a good job.) A booklet on the care of a permanent wave. A timetable.

HE laid the empty bag on the bureau and looked more closely at the timetable. Cilly looked at it too, a little fearfully.

"What's this?" he asked. "Southern Pacific timetable. Was Miss Kerr planning any vacation?"

"Southern Pacific," Cilly thought. "Why, that goes to . . ."

With elaborate carelessness, she said: "Not that I know of. I suppose we all consider a trip to Hollywood at one time or another."

She wasn't really sure that the Southern Pacific went to Utah. "Hollywood, eh? Well, that might be . . . No! Here's some place she's checked off. Bluefields, Bluefields, Utah. Ever hear her mention that?"

Cilly's eyes widened. Her heart quickened, but she made a desperate effort to appear casual.

"She never said anything to me about Utah," she answered. That was the truth. Amy never had mentioned it. But the clipping was from a Bluefields paper. And Jim's postcard, so perilously close.

What would Dolan say if he found it under her pillow? He would know that she had deliberately hidden it.

But fortunately Dolan looked no further in the bedroom. He put the timetable into his inner coat pocket. Cilly knew that he would get in touch with the police at Bluefields, Utah. He'd check up with them just as he planned to check at Interlaken, New Hampshire.

What would be the outcome? What mystery would they discover in Amy Kerr's past? Would it affect Jim Kerrigan in any way? Cilly felt certain that it couldn't—yet Jim was on his way to Utah this very minute. Her head spun with the ever-increasing questions which popped into her mind.

SERGEANT DOLAN was back in the living room.

He walked over to the bridge table, looked down at it. Glanced at the score pad critically.

"Who kept score?" he asked carelessly.

"Harry Hutchins. Why?"

"Cheated his opponents out of two hundred. Should be 1440 here instead of 1240." He grinned.

Even as Cilly considered the pettiness of Harry Hutchins, she marveled at Sergeant Dolan's quickness in catching the error. Nothing would escape the man. Not the slightest thing.

The bridge-table had been set up against the divan, with three smaller chairs at the other sides. Amy had been sitting on the divan. Dolan pulled the table out. He picked up one of the cushions from the divan.

"Who sat here?" he asked. "Amy sat here. She and I were partners. I sat over here."

Dolan reached down and picked something up, something which had been tucked under the cushion.

"She did, eh? What's this little note? More cheating?"

IT was just a scrap of paper torn from the score-pad. Probably the top sheet with some old scores on it, Cilly thought, which they had neglected to remove.

Then she saw that it was nothing so casual to Sergeant Dolan. He frowned darkly as he read it. He looked at Cilly sharply as he held the note out to her:

"Who wrote this?" he demanded. Cilly read it. As she did so, the color left her face. She felt as if she had been struck a surprising blow. Her knees trembled. A sudden nausea overcame her. The scribbled words on the paper said: "Meet me up on the roof after we break up here." And they had definitely, undeniably been written by Jim Kerrigan.

"Who wrote it?" Sergeant Dolan repeated. He looked back at the score-pad, as Cilly hesitated.

"It wasn't Hutchins, because this is his writing here. So it must have been the other young man. Your friend Kerrigan. Isn't that so, Miss Pierce?"

"It would seem so," Cilly admitted, weakly. She sat down in a chair. Her legs refused to support her any longer. She was frightened—wildly frightened.

"So that's it!" Sergeant Dolan went on brutally. "Mr. Kerrigan was up on the roof with the young lady. Now the question is, what were they doing up there? Was it a friendly visit—or did they have a quarrel? Doesn't look so good, does it, Miss Pierce?"

Cilly did not answer.

"You're quite sure," Sergeant Dolan asked, "that last night was the first time Kerrigan and Miss Kerr met? Sure they didn't know each other before?"

"I'm sure they didn't," Cilly replied. Yet even as the words left her lips, she remembered the sudden light that had dawned in Amy's eyes as she met Jim . . .

1938 Studebaker to Be Shown Here

Archer Motor Company to Display Model in New Sales Rooms

Returning home from a trip through the Studebaker factory and a sales conference with the Studebaker executives three men from Archer Motor company, local Studebaker dealer, arrived here Thursday driving new 1938 cars, which they will use to demonstrate the new line to the public. The cars will be displayed at the show-rooms of Archer Motor company located at Third and Walnut.

A presentation of the new car is expected soon, according to Mr. Archer the local Studebaker dealer, who described his trip to South Bend and the welcome he and his men received at the Studebaker plant.

"We enjoyed ourselves immensely," Mr. Archer said. "The program presented was one of the most interesting and instructive ever offered to any group of business men, such as the Studebaker dealer organization."

"The cars were put through their paces at the 800-acre Studebaker proving ground," Mr. Archer continued, "demonstrating in every conceivable manner, the way Studebaker engineers test cars for performance, comfort and safety many months before the finished automobile is presented to the public."

The local dealer and his men were impressed most of all by "The Studebaker Cavalcade," a presentation of the history of The Studebaker Corporation from the early beginning of the 85-year old manufacturer to the present day, which included the announcement of important Studebaker activities for 1938. Unlike any other automobile history and fact presentation, the "Cavalcade" was shown in musical revue fashion, a stage show and motion picture, which offered an entire afternoon of educational entertainment.

Enthusiasm rides high among all Studebaker dealers, the local automotive man reports and the outlook for Great New Field House at U. of A.

Spanish Dancer to Open Concert Session in 4,300-Seat Auditorium

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—The University of Arkansas will use her new field house as an auditorium for the first time, October 7, when Sarita, Spanish dancer, is presented in recital by the student affairs committee.

The largest auditorium in the state, with a seating capacity of 4,300, the new field house will be used for programs in an artists course that includes such stellar attractions as the U. S. Navy Band, Nino Martini and Jose Iturbi. Students will be admitted on activity tickets. The public will be admitted on a small admission charge.

Appearing on the program with Sarita will be Velasco, her dancing partner, and Ricardo Romero, pianist and composer.

1938 is more than promising. The 1938 Studebakers are offered in three lines: the President, the Commander, and the Six Mr. Archer pointed out. The local Studebaker agent is planning a gala introduction of the new car and promises many pleasant surprises in his opening announcement, which is expected in a very short time.

Former Nevada Co. Citizen Is Killed

J. Virgil Andrews, 39, Meets Tragic Death at Evanston, Wyoming

PRESCOTT, Ark.—J. Virgil Andrews, aged 39, former citizen of this county, was accidentally killed last Saturday morning near Evanston, Wyo., while working as a section foreman on the Union Pacific railroad, relatives here were notified early this week. The report stated that a piece of steel from a hammer struck Andrews in the throat severing the jugular vein.

The body will arrive here Thursday at noon. Funeral services will be held at Liberty church Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and will be conducted by Bro. John White. Burial will be in Liberty cemetery. Pallbearers for the services will be: Active, Nick Jones, Walter Emerson, Tom Burns, George Burns, Grady Cox, and George Haynie; honorary, F. S. McClellan, H. E. Haynie, M. J. Taylor, Martin Guthrie, W. R. Hambright, and A. E. McGuire.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Andrews of Prescott Route Two; three brothers, Arthur L., Edgar and Bernard, all of Prescott; four sisters, Mrs. George Garrett of Camden, Mrs. Geo. W. Mann of El Dorado, Mrs. J. M. Worthington of Prescott and Mrs. J. B. Menard of Vicksburg, Miss. One son, Everett of Ogden, Utah, and one daughter, Kathleen of Evanston, Wyo.

Andrews was a native of this county and spent his early manhood in the Redland community. He leaves many friends who will be deeply grieved to learn of his untimely passing.

The okapi, curious animal of Africa, is considered by zoologists to be about 30,000,000 years behind the times. It resembles animals of the Miocene period.

Father Strassner Enters Monastery

Former Hope Pastor Becomes Member of Benedictine Order

The Rev. George Strassner, formerly pastor of the Catholic congregation at Hope and prominent for many years in parish and mission work in Arkansas, was one of a class of three who made the profession of triennial vows Tuesday at New Subiaco Abbey, through which they became members of the Benedictine Order. Others in the trio were Lambert Eckelhoff of Morrison Bluff, and Fintan Oldham of Columbus, O.

Father Strassner, a native of Toledo, O., is a graduate of the University of Notre Dame and of St. John's Seminary, Little Rock. He served as pastor of Hope for 11 years, resigning in July, 1936.

Previously he had been stationed in Pocatontos and in Jonesboro, and had had charge of missions in 11 southwestern Arkansas counties. While at Hope he was elected lieutenant governor of the Kiwanis clubs in the Arkansas, Kansas and Missouri district. He will become a member of the faculty at Subiaco College-Academy.

THEATERS

At the New
With all the color, action and excitement typical of college football and its background, "The Big Game," RKO Radio's gridiron story by Francis Wallace, comes to the screen with a notable roster of cinema favorites, along with a cast of All-American gridiron gladiators to provide vivid realism.

Concerning the gridiron career of a coal miner's son attending college under the sponsorship of a sportsman who makes a fortune by backing the lad's sensational playing, the story is said to be replete with dramatic action, comedy and romance.

Philip Huston, brilliant Broadway stage actor, is cast as the football protégé whose reputation suddenly becomes tarnished when his sweetheart's father, a sports writer, leads a crusade against racketeering in college football. Nevertheless, gamblers move into the college town to make a "killing" on the big game of the season. Huston is abducted and held captive by gambling "big shots" who have wagered thousands of dollars against his eleven.

How his sweetheart, a gambling brother, a high powered press agent and a repentant teamster join forces to foil the racketeers, save the football game and clear the boy's name, precipitate an action-laden climax. Besides Huston, the cast includes pretty June Travis as his sweetheart, Bruce Cabot as his mercenary teammate, James Gleason as his sporting sponsor, and Andy Devine, Frank M. Thomas, John Arledge, Quinn Williams, Eddie Nugent and Barbara Pepper.

The roster of famous football stars includes Bobby Wilson, Frank Alvis, "Bones" Hamilton, William Shickles, "Boone" Gomer Jones, "King Kong" Klein, Jay Berwanger, Monk Moscrip and "Chuck" Bennis. George Nichols, Jr., directed "The Big Game," a Pandro S. Berman production for RKO Radio.

Magnolia to Play Prescott Friday

Curly Wolves Will Be Hosts to Panthers at Prescott

MAGNOLIA, Ark. (Special)—The Magnolia high school Panthers started the season off Friday 18, with a 6-0 victory over Sarepta, La. The team will play for its second victory with Prescott high school Friday night at Prescott.

The team has nine letter men back from last year. They are as follows: Brown, Captain, Morden, Burns, Backs, Hudson, Bradley, Sanders, and Jones.

First year men who have showed up well are W. Dunn, Kirkpatrick, Dinger and Grace.

The average weight of the Panther's line is 155 pounds and the backfield 143.

The team is led by Captain Kohn Morden, 178 pound end, who is a three year letter man.

Dawson Sanders, 150 pound and James Herbert Jones, 145 pounds who are both two year letter men showed Friday night that they could play a bang-up game in the backfield. Sanders, who was out with an injury most of last year has shown plenty of drive as a ball carrier. Jones, blocking back, is a fine tackler and blocker. He has also proven his ability as a punter and passer.

The Panthers can be expected to have a fast driving backfield and a strong, hardworking line.

The team will be accompanied to Prescott, Friday night, by a thirty piece band and a large number of the student body of the high school.

Handbook Is Ready for School Debate

'Unicameral Legislatures' Subject for High School Debates

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—A handbook for 1937-38 debaters in Arkansas high school contests is ready for distribution by the General Extension Service of the University of Arkansas.

Subject of the debates this year is "Unicameral Legislatures." Material and references have been compiled in a bulletin of more than 200 pages.

The handbook is published co-operatively by extension divisions and departments of speech of 24 universities and colleges. It is edited by Bower Aly of the University of Missouri.

In connection with the program this year a demonstration debate on the chosen subject will be broadcast over a nation wide hook-up in November. Arkansas high school debaters will hold their annual competition for first place honors at the University High School Meet in April.

Travelers Beaten by Atlanta, 6 to 2

Crackers Take Opening of Seven-Game Series Play-Off

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—Emil "Dutch" Leonard veteran knuckle ball artist, handbatted the Little Rock Travelers with seven well scattered hits Wednesday night while his Atlanta Crackers teammates pounded out 12 for a 6-2 victory in the first game of the Southern Association Shognessy playoff finals before 5106 cash customers.

Leonard contributed two blows to the Atlanta assault but the big bat was wielded by Alex Hooks who drove in three runs with as many hits, including two doubles. Marshall Mauldin also got three bingles, two of them doubles.

Jinx Pointexter started for the Travelers but was no puzzle and was relieved by Dickman in the sixth after being touched for 11 hits and six runs. Midkiff later succeeded Dickman.

Little Rock played a slow game in the field, making two errors and letting infield taps for four base hits. Atlanta's defense was airtight.

The Crackers took a one-run lead in the opening frame on doubles by Mauldin and Hooks and added another in the second when Chatham tripled to center and scored when Griffiths juggled the relay in from the outfield.

The Travelers got one run back in the third on Nonescamp's three-bagger to right and a passed ball by Catcher Richards and tied it up in the fourth on singles by Taub and Graham.

Atlanta went ahead to stay in the fifth when Leonard, Luby and Rose singled and Niemiec made an error that gave the visitors two runs. The Crackers added two more in the sixth on two singles, a walk and Hooks' two-bagger with the bases full.

Mailho turned in the fielding gem of the game, making a running catch near the right field bleachers of Thompson's long fly.

Sharp or Humphries will pitch for Little Rock in Thursday night's second game of the series. Durham will be the Atlanta hurler.

Atlanta 110 022 000—6 12 1
Little Rock 001 100 000—2 7 2
Leonard and Richards; Pointexter, Dickman, Midkiff and Thompson.

Cubs' home season 41,875 spectators who jammed every corner of Wrigley Field, the lanky assistant to Carl Hubbell in the Giant left-handed department, checked in with a superb performance—a job which regained everything New York lost Tuesday in losing the first game of the critical series.

It restored the Giants 2 1/2 game margin over the desperate, and Wednesday almost utterly futile Cubs, and assured Col. William Terry's defending champions of finishing the all important series still in possession of the league leadership. The final game of the set will be played Thursday with Hal Schumacher, big Giant right hander on the mound.

While Melton was moving smoothly to his 18th victory of the campaign, against nine defeats, the Giants raked three Cub hurlers Tex Carleton, Clay Bryant and Rookie Southpaw Bob Logan, for 13 hits, all singles except a double apiece by Joe Moore and Dick Bartell.

Johnny McCarthy led the Giants attack with four singles, three of which played parts in New York scoring innings.

Yankees All But Clinch Pennant

New York Club Needs Only One More Victory in American Race

NEW YORK.—(P)—By sweeping their doubleheader with the St. Louis Browns Wednesday behind fine pitching performances by Monte Pearson and Kemp Wicker, the Yankees virtually clinched their second successive American League pennant.

Even if the second-place Detroit Tigers should win all of their remaining eleven games while the Yanks were losing all twelve of theirs, the best the Tigers could get would be a tie. In that even the final standings would be:

Club	W.	L.	Pct.
Yankees	96	58	.623
Tigers	96	58	.623

One defeat for Detroit or one more victory for the New Yorkers will insure the pennant for the 1936 world champions.

Pearson Wednesday held the last-place Browns to seven hits for a 4-1 victory in the opening game, while Wickers, winning his sixth decision of the year, shut them out a similar number as the Yanks pounded out fifteen safeties for an 11-0 triumph in the night-cap.

The champions were held to three hits by Jack Knott and Julia Bonetti in the first encounter, but all of them were for extra bases and one was a homer by Tony Lazzeri, his thirteenth, with a man on base in the sixth.

A. T. Bratton Loses

Violations of the laws, rules and regulations governing the operation of liquor stores in Arkansas were set out at the reason for the cancellation.

First: That the said A. T. Bratton through his employees and especially his wife violated the law, rules and regulations in the operation of the said liquor store and by virtue thereof of the permittee and/or his wife were convicted in the Nevada Circuit Court and fined on July 1, 1937, $50 and ten (10) days in jail and costs.

Second: That the permittee permitted through his agents and employees the sale of liquor in violation of Act 108 and the rules and regulations of the Commissioner of Revenue made and provided for the operation and control of the retail liquor store.

Third: That the permittee violated the law in securing testimony relative to the purchase of liquor for his Texarkana store from a Camden wholesale dealer which judgment was in violation of the law of the State of Arkansas, and which occurred with the above of the unlawful sale of liquor within the past two years.

Fourth: That the permittee kept liquor for sale at his home or hotel in Prescott, Arkansas, in violation of the laws of the State of Arkansas.

Fifth: That the said permittee aided
